CHILDREN'S SONGS for CHILDREN!

We certainly enjoy Bo Bo and the Bluebirds and your children's singing groups and I'm sure our worldwide audience loves them. However I'm wondering a little bit about your choice of numbers for children.

"Sad Day for a Poorman" comes across when they sing it, but I'm wondering if it's natural for children to express such sentiments.

It just seems to me that children's songs should be normally more happy songs, expressing more natural, childish sentiments.

"THE TIME TO BE HAPPY IS NOW!"

I think the general public are going to be a bit surprised and shocked by some of the songs we've had the children singing. I know some of them were almost risque, like "Bye Bye, Teacher".

"I SAID 'OOH BABY, TAKE A LITTLE WALK WITH ME!'"

The World looks to children for joy and happiness and Godliness and Heavenliness. They expect them to be happy little angels singing heavenly songs and giving the simple little childlike messages of God and His love from above!

Out of the mouths of babes and sucklings He has perfected praise..

...not politics, economics and sex!!

So let's please let our children be children as long as we can, shall we?

We're to be like little children ourselves, and we're to be loving, simple, easy believers, and childlike in faith, believing, receiving, loving and happy!

So let's be honest, let's let the music be the expression of our own personal sentiments and those of our children. Whatever it is, you must understand it, believe it, receive it, and sing it with feeling!!

I'M SO HAPPY, BECAUSE LOVE IS IN MY SOUL!

And it must be the expression of your own personal testimony and your heart, and come straight from the depths of your soul with real conviction — Amen? GBY! WLY—& your music!
