

KENNEDY

It is generally recognised that Kennedy was one of the greatest presidents America has had. He was a good friend of the poor man. . . a socialist and a peacemaker. He avoided one of the greatest dangers of a missile war the U.S. ever had in the Cuban Missile Crisis. He did it by a personal private talk with Krushev.

He was a great lover of Pres. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who was a friend of the poor man, and Kennedy modelled his politics after him. FDR was probably the greatest president the U.S. ever had and he was really almost communising America... insisted upon recognising the Communists... and incidentally it's still a mystery how he died! He could have been poisoned. He was supposed to have had a sudden stroke... His coffin was kept closed at his funeral.

A recent magazine article confirmed that President John Kennedy was assassinated by U.S. Fascists because he was on too friendly relations with Russia. He was trying to make peace with Russia and came closest to doing it of any man yet. I believe that Kennedy really wanted to live peacefully with them in a peaceful world, and he was trying to establish a lasting détente. I thought he was a very good man and very sincere as the world goes.

Also, he was really trying to socialize America, and between the two-- the hardhats and the anti-Communists-- they couldn't stomach him and considered him too liberal.

I believe that's why Robert was shot too, because I believe he would have won the election...he certainly was a friend of the youth and a socialist, like his brother John.

I believe that any other man who would seriously threaten...the fascist control of the U.S. would be in just as great danger of either assassination or an engineered scandal or whatever! Because the U.S. fascists have gotten to the point now where they're playing it rough, and they're not about to begin to let any liberal or socialist take control of the government.--That is, if the U.S. lasts that long!

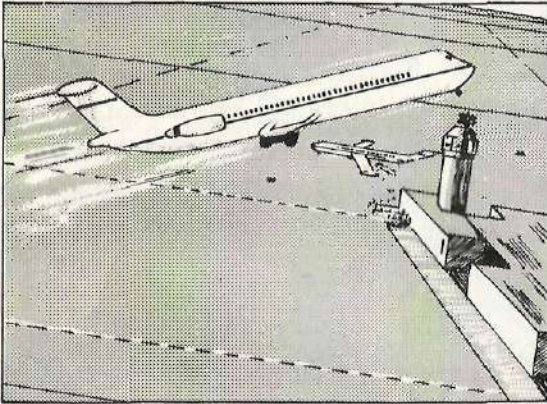

He died a martyr for his convictions and his cause. They shot him at a very opportune time when they knew they had a good conservative Texan in LBJ who could take over, so they didn't waste any time doing it. LBJ made that woman judge swear him in right on the plane with Mrs. Kennedy standing right beside him as a witness... her clothes still splattered with her own husband's blood!

I think Nitler was at this a long time. He was having a big pow-wow with some of his top money men, his fascist hardhat supporters, in Dallas the night before Kennedy was shot there!--And the host of this fascist conference Nitler was having and about a dozen of these guys took off for Mexico the next day right after Kennedy was shot!

It's my opinion that America will be destroyed just as the Lord has indicated before a socialist government could ever get in control again. In the time America has left she'll remain in darkness till she's destroyed. She rejected her final salvation, our Jesus Revolution!
